

The Curricular Practical Training (CPT) class provides international graduate students in the College of Engineering with an opportunity to gain practical experience in their field of study. To qualify for this class, the student must have completed at least one academic year of enrollment in valid F-1 Status, have completed at least 18 units of the required

